With users and watch time steadily increasing year over year, YouTube videos can be a powerful tool to tell your story and spread your message. Especially in the world of eLearning where many products and tools are heavily visual-based.

Just do a quick search and you'll find that tips, information, and advice about eLearning is a very underserved niche on YouTube. There are a few good channels out there. But with a vetted strategy and a bit of planning, there is a surplus of opportunity to grow your eLearning brand on YouTube.

But just like any venture, launching a YouTube channel is a challenging task that requires careful planning and continued attention.

Before you get started, check out these eight tips:
